

CONTROLLING THE WORLD: ONE WORLD GOVERNMENT

Ricardo Beas -- January 2010

You have probably heard or read somewhere about The New World Order, One World Government and/or The Conspiracy and people that believe in it, which are typically classified as being “conspiracists” and nuts. The New World Order represents in the mind of many the ruling elite’s plan to dominate the whole world through a one world government, run by the United Nations and similar institutions and the persons behind them, effectively and by its own nature, submitting the world to a fascist regime run by corporate interests. It’s pretty hard to believe.

I was introduced to these theories in 1988 and have been studying and comparing them and their quoted sources ever since. What if I wanted to create a one world government to control the whole world, wanted to be the one that decides how things will run, who will live and who will die? What would I need and what conditions would I have to create? What and who would I need to pull it off?

Well, obvious things would be a lot of money, a lot of commercial power and political influence – and of course, like minded individuals with the same goals to join forces with, Obviously I could not pull it off on my own, I would need accomplices and probably more than a lifetime – it would be a conspiracy. What would be the purpose? Simply unlimited wealth and power, if not a twisted desire to simply inflict pain in others (as Genghis Khan supposedly said, “It is not sufficient that I succeed. Everyone else must fail.”). It would not be the first time someone wanted to be king of the world.

But in a sophisticated and industrial world, mere swords would not suffice to submit everyone to my will. Keep in mind that to control the whole world I would need to control it in all its aspects. So what would be my strategy? Let me give it a shot, in no particular order. By the way, as used herein, I, me, my and the like means my co-conspirators and me.

- My power would have to be invisible. I would need to work from behind the scenes of governments to impose my will, my regulations.
- It would have to be attained through violence and terrorism, where manipulation does not work.
- People would be infected with the idea of freedom, equality and, for the sake of these ideas, people would be willing to yield some of their own individual freedoms.
- Before, brute force (kingdoms) ruled, then faith (main religions), now gold is to rule, so I would need to get most or all of it. Gold in all its forms, of course, including petroleum, real estate, etc.

- If necessary, and especially if there is resistance to my plans, I would create catastrophic events to instill fear among the masses, like a “911”, that I can use as an excuse to create wars, in particular a war with no boundaries and no specific enemy, like the “war on terror”. Under fear the masses would beg for regulations to protect them from the unseen enemy, thus allowing me to steal all their rights and freedoms and control all aspects of their lives.
- I would need a world body through which everything can be controlled, regulated, like banking, media, education, medicine, warfare, land distribution and food production. Something like a United Nations. I would replace natural rights with national rights and then with international rights, rights I would give and take away at will, making them mere privileges.
- I would entice countries to join a global regulatory entity to help all countries trade freely and help each other when in need through world banks; I would inspire a global harmonization, while unknown to them I would use it to bind all these countries through international agreements to submit them to my will, rules and regulations. Countries that do not follow suite, like those with monarchy-like states or religious rule would be criticized and forced, through the disguise of democracy, to open their governments to more scrutiny, and thus, more international control that my global entity, under the guise of freedom, human rights, world peace and through my police force, would force them to join the ranks of the rest of the world.
- I would create local unions of nations, like the European Union, the North American Union, the Asian Union, etc., and they would in turn work under the rule of a global entity, where they would ultimately be merged, together with their local currencies, at some point going cashless (the head of MasterCard stated recently that we would go cashless before 2020; some banks in Ireland have already gone cashless).
- For ultimate control of persons and their wealth, I would first encourage and then either force or secretly implant RFID (radio-frequency identification) chips in all human beings that would include a system for tracking their location and canceling their access to their savings when necessary. Via the cashless society I would know and control all financial transactions.
- I would take advantage of mob rule by creating discontent everywhere, through war, famine, inequality, division of races and religious ideals. It must be understood that the might of a mob is blind, senseless and an unreasoning force ever at the mercy of a suggestion from any side, both to obtain short term and long term change.
- I would encourage neighbor to fight neighbor under the guise of “constitutional rights,” to use the court system to sue anyone that opposes their views and to impose new laws that they suggest on the citizenry, and to use government to create more regulations to secure those so-called rights. The more regulations, the more control I would have over the masses, without them knowing, with their own help.

- I would purchase all the major outlets of media, TV, radio, movies, newspapers, magazines and book publishing. With the heads of these organizations under my control, I would give voice to the complaints of the people, to express and to create discontent. It is in the Press that the triumph of freedom of speech finds its incarnation. I would gain the power of influence while remaining in the shadows.
- Major newspaper and magazine news articles would be derived from controlled centralized sources of information (like United Press International, UPI). These centralized sources would only give publicity to what I dictate to them. Thanks to such methods I would be in a position as from time to time may be required, to excite or to tranquilize the public mind on political questions, to persuade or to confuse, printing now truth, now lies, facts or their contradictions, according as they may be well or ill received.
- All my newspapers would be of all possible complexions - aristocratic, republican, revolutionary, even anarchical. Like the Indian idol "Vishnu" they would have a hundred hands, and every one of them would have a finger on any one of the public opinions as required. When necessary these hands would lead opinion in the direction of my aims, for an excited person loses all power of judgment and easily yields to suggestion. Those fools who would think they are repeating the opinion of a newspaper of their own belief would be repeating my opinion or any opinion that seems desirable and advantageous to me. In the vain belief that they are following the organ of their party they would, in fact, follow the flag which I would hang out for them.
- I would maintain the minds of my readers occupied with different scandals, of movie stars, politicians and public figures, any gossip that distracts them from important news and events that must be covered to maintain an appearance of balance journalism, while always pushing my agenda and declaring it the absolute truth.
- When presenting inconvenient truths, they would be analyzed superficially and when possible would leave these notes for the end of articles, diminishing in the mind of the reader their importance and stating or implying that those that bring those ideas forward do not know what they are talking about, classifying them as unfounded sources, and in some cases, as "conspiracists," a convenient term intended to discredit anyone opposing my stories and theories. I would also consistently direct the thoughts of readers toward new controversies, to distract them from pondering further on any particular matter.
- I would debilitate the public mind by criticism; to lead it away from serious reflections calculated to arouse resistance; to distract the forces of the mind towards a sham fight of empty ambition. In order to put public opinion into my hands I would bring it into a state of bewilderment by giving expression from all sides to so many contradictory opinions and for such length of time as would suffice to make the masses lose their heads in the labyrinth and come to see that the best thing is to have no opinion of any kind in matters of government and law.

- I would promote drinking alcohol on TV as a way to enjoy life, a way to relax and deal with problems and on every occasion of leisure. I would use all media sources for that purpose. I would turn many into habitual drinkers and alcoholics. Once I rule the world I would ban alcohol to stop it from disrupting my new world order, inflicting harsh punishment for its production and use.
- Then with the excuse of drunk driving and other things, I would set up roadblocks to better control persons' movements and make them see the might of the State, that no one can escape its reach, even when lawfully traveling.
- I would promote sexuality from early age, at every level and in all opportunities of publicity, magazines, talk shows, commercials, pornographic magazines, movies, TV shows, everything that would turn our natural sexual instinct into an insatiable desire and obsession to distract the mind, and all primarily to destroy the family unit. I would promote sexual pleasures and birth control as opposed to abstinence and self-control.
- For the same purpose, I would promote luxuries and toys of all kinds to reduce household incomes (I would own the factories of course), while promoting women to be equal to men, to leave the home and to go into the workplace to be able to pay for all these luxuries, placing children at an earlier age into daycare centers. The younger they go into my public schools, the sooner I can control their minds and make them believe that government will provide them "their" rights and will even protect them from their parents.
- Another advantage of having woman work would be that now I would not only tax male workers, but females as well. I would have definitely promoted, if not created women liberation movements.
- Taking advantage of the declared equality of woman, I would include them also in the military draft to increase my armed forces, who would believe they are sacrificing their lives for freedom and their country, when in fact they are simply helping me achieve my goals.
- I would use one country to carry my torch of supposed freedom and equality, and what better than the United States. I would send troops to war, declare my government as the protector of freedom in the planet, and then under the appearance of "protecting our troops" I would justify perpetuating the war and would call anyone opposing my war a traitor, to our country and our troops. I would create such fervor for patriotism that people would virtually wrap themselves in the flag, which would not allow them to see or hear any arguments that support ending my war efforts or going against any of my plans of global domination.

- I would promote TV, movie and video games that deal with the killing of others to desensitize children from early age, instilling violence and the use of force in their hearts, which would make them better killing machines in the battle field. If they turn into serials killers, even better, to frighten the population into demanding more policing of their lives.
- I would corrupt/bribe politicians with money, power and especially sexual pleasures, things that I can later use against them if they ever go against any of my plans. I could easily throw them to the mob, losing everything they have, from reputation to their ill-gotten wealth, sometimes even to jail – of course, I could always have them killed if I have no other option, or to make an example of those that might want to follow in their steps.
- I would have to be merciless for disobedience to cease. I would maintain terror in people's mind, which tends to produce blind submission.
- I would place administrators at all levels, chosen from the public and with strict regard to their capacity to servile obedience, not trained in government, and would provide them the advisers they would need to carry out my orders.
- I would control science and would create theories to fit my needs, like evolution, psychiatry, political and social science, and orthodox medicine.
- I would create and promote the belief that only manufactured medications can cure a person, with persuasion through the media, doctors, foundations, and the government. I would create medical associations that would dictate what is taught in schools to future doctors, and what medications to prescribe. I would own all the larger international pharmaceutical conglomerates. The one that presently exists would do just fine!
- I would use psychiatry to proclaim that every human condition is a disease that needs treatment, for which I would create the medications (by the way, psychiatry is the only medical profession that can “legally” institutionalize you by decree for life).
- Through the media, I would create fear of disease and encourage, and where necessary force, mass vaccination programs for all, free in appearance, but sold at a premium price to governments (of course, I would make these governments write laws that would shield me against any liability from users). Through such vaccines I would create my civilization of future medical dependents, suffering from autism to Alzheimer's, Parkinson's disease, cancer and other diseases that I would sell expensive medications and treatments for. This would also help me create acceptance or preparation for implanting RFID chips in the population. I would also sell so called antidepressants to children to turn them into future dependents of my medications, even if these could cause suicidal or violent thought in its users.

- Regardless of the harm of my medications, such as chemotherapy and mastectomy, I would negate the existence of any natural cures for any diseases, as I would be unable to patent them and control their production and sale.
- My power over the worker would be merciless. My power would be in the chronic shortness of food and physical weakness of the worker because by all that this implies he is made the slave of my will.
- I would create economic crisis that would allow me to further tighten my ownership and control over all main enterprises of industry.
- I would create two opposite global political ideals, like capitalism and communism, and through military force I would divide the world, create wars in those countries that do not submit to either forces' will. Then, once I have divided as much as I could, I would merge these two systems into a middle-ground ism, like socialism.
- I would create secret societies that on the outside would offer prosperity, riches and religious development to its members. I would invite men of power from all levels. I would instill in them a loyalty, under threat of harm, in return for such fortunes, but I would measure each, determine their weaknesses and exploit them to do my will (as 50 year FBI Director and 33° Freemason J. Edgar Hoover did), to use them as agents to carry out my plans, having them infiltrate all corners of government and influential corporate entities and ultimately run my one world government, positions I would give and take away at will.
- I would undermine all faiths, to tear out of the mind of all people the very principle of god-head, the spirit and life after death. I would create and promote the theory of evolution and would put in its place my science and the urge for material needs, ambition for riches, drunkenness, sex and leisure, making fame and fortune as being the ultimate measure of a man's success in life. God would be replaced by Gold. I would erect worldly possessions into a veritable cult, for the sake of those material delights.
- I would sell them all these things they lust, keeping them barely paying their bills, in a state of perpetual borrowing and debt. Everyone's mind must be diverted towards industry and trade. Thus, all the nations' people would be swallowed up in the pursuit of gain and in the race for it would not take note of their common foe, me.
- I would tax every activity, no matter how minor, telling people that it is for their own good and for the sake of equality, even taxing the air they breathe through international global agreements, using such theories as global warming to roundup support (not to be confused with the unrelated poisonous consequences of industrial pollution). At the end of the day, all corporations would be mine or under my control because I would create and control them through my governmental charters, permits and regulations, and they would collect any taxes I impose. They would also help me control the masses by controlling output of production, like foodstuffs.

- I would create speculation through trading exchanges, like Wall Street, to control and swallow companies in times of bull and bear markets, which I would influence and in some areas control. The result of this would be that what is withdrawn from the land by industry would slip through the hands and pass into speculation, which I would control. At the appropriate time and through governmental regulation, I would close these exchanges to secure my gains and complete control.

- I would also create depressions, which I would create through the control of financial instruments and tightening of credit. This I would do through central banks, in image owned and controlled by the government, but in reality being my private corporate entities authorized to control the money supply and the interests rates at which said money would be loaned; something like the Federal Reserve (as Mayer Amschel Rothschild said, Give me control of a nation's money and I care not who makes her laws). In some instances I would make money available at very low interest rates for prolonged periods of time, encouraging people to purchase things by credit and thus getting into debt and then at the appropriate times I would raise the interest rate and require immediate payment of my loans (like in the Great Depression, which started 16 years after the Fed was created) to later buy corporations for pennies on the dollar in the stock markets, or to maintain them in prolonged debt while I reap the profits. It would not matter if the interest rate was low because I would not put up a dime to earn it, the government would actually print it for me out of thin air; I would just be the keeper of the books, receiving interest and would control the money supply, to squeeze any government financially to do my will when necessary.

- I would eliminate the requirement that paper money be backed by gold so I can better speculate with currency.

- I would create an intensified centralization of government in order to grip in my hands all the forces of the community. In the United States, I would do it through the ever increasing power of the federal government, extending to matters that before were reserved to the States to control, and also abolishing in appearance the natural rights of natural born human beings living in such lands, as are secured by the Common Law (see for example the Northwest Ordinance of 1787). I would federally deputize all local police forces.

- I would hide every natural born human being's right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, as those expressed in the Declaration of Independence and the Common Law, the foundation of law in the United States, under layers and layers of regulations, legislation and governmental decrees to give me absolute control over the masses through regulation and the threat of incarceration and confiscation. Instead, I would have them demand justice under their supposed constitutional rights, not understanding that their rights don't come from the constitution. By not understanding their natural rights, they would never be able to escape from my maze of rules and regulations; they would not know how to petition for their rights. This way, all decisions would favor me, even more by using my appointed judges to keep the Common Law out of the courtroom.

- I would discredit any individual that contradicts any of my theories, works against me, or tries to uncover and expose my plans, and would withdraw any financial support for any governmental studies (like those in universities) that don't arrive at my results and conclusions. I would create associations, foundations and the like that would reward with money and titles those that express my views and would dismiss all other opinions as not being from reliable authoritative sources.

- I would create and use all sorts of non-profit organizations and foundations to put out only views that help me reach my aims, like the Council on Foreign Relations. That would form the basis for government policy no matter which party is in power, telling each administration which members to put in key posts to further my ambitions.

- I would create a great interest in sports of all kinds, promoting them at all levels, from local schools to international events using my mass media empire; exciting the fans, for whom I would place stadiums everywhere. This would maintain the masses occupied with games and events associates with such sports, draining their energies and maintaining their minds occupied, while I also reap the profits from such events, and which would further help me divide the masses.

- People would be rejoiced that I have regulated everything in their lives as is done by wise parents who desire to train children in the cause of duty and submission. The right to compel the execution of duty is the direct obligation of a government, which is a father for its subjects. It has the right of the strong that it may use it for the benefit of directing humanity towards that order which is defined by me. I would be obliged without hesitation to sacrifice individuals, who commit a breach of the established order, for in the exemplary punishment of dissidents would lay a great educational example.

- In my programs one third of the population would keep the rest under observation from a sense of duty, on the principle of volunteer service to the State. It would then be no disgrace to be a spy and informer, but a merit.

So, that's some of the things I would do. Well, actually, I did not come up with these ideas on my own, they are written in different publications, written over time and in different parts of the world. The majority of the steps outlined above come from a book published for the first time on or around 1897, and which has come to be known as the Protocols of the Meetings of the Learned Elders of Zion.

It was supposedly uncovered accidentally. The Protocols are supposed to reflect a Jewish conspiracy to control the world, although in mainstream media it is considered to be a forgery. Yet, when you consider the age of the publication and what has happened to our world since, it appears that someone, whoever they may be (from whichever race, country or religion) is implementing the plan. In 1921 the automobile magnate Henry Ford stated that the Protocols fitted in what was going on then. And if you apply it now, in particular as regards the tight control of the press and the control of the money supply, it becomes even more intriguing, at least to me.

There are many organizations that are considered the main promoters of this one World Government, the best known being the Council on Foreign Relations, the Trilateral Commission (both established by the Rockefeller interests) and a more secretive group called the Bilderbergs, deriving their name from the place where the original Bilderberg conference was held, the Hotel de Bilderberg, near Arnhem in The Netherlands, from 29 May to 31 May 1954, and which is purported to be a meeting of the most powerful and influential figures in the fields of politics, business, banking and media in the world.

These meetings happen annually under utmost secrecy (not even a roster of attendees is supposed to be kept). Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernake attended the June 2008 meeting in Chantilly, Virginia. By the way, the United Nations headquarters in New York sits on land purchased and donated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whose son David in his memoirs noted that he was proud of helping orchestrate the plan for a new world order ("Some even believe we [the Rockefeller family] are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as 'internationalists' and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure---one world, if you will. If that's the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it." -- David Rockefeller, MEMOIRS, 2002).

Since the 2008 financial crisis, we hear the term new world order being used more often now by influential individuals, like England's Prime Minister Gordon Brown, French President Nicolas Sarkozy, and President Barack Obama. I think some of the conspiracists' theories and information merit serious consideration. I would hate to think that we are simply pawns in someone else's lucrative global chess game. And if it is true, I'm up for the challenge. Are you?

One final note: When recommending some reading material to a friend, he questioned the author's credibility by telling me that such person was a right wing extremist and he was not. Don't let labels confuse you. Remember, it's not the messenger but the information he/she might contribute to help you find the truth that matters. Always, be objective, else we will be violating the second first rule of critical thinking: question yourself.

To find out more about these plans for a one world government, I recommend the following:
